

Sticky Knowledge Organizer

Jack and The Beanstalk

Key Words:

Jack

Magic beans

The beanstalk

The Giant

Fee, Fi, Foe, Fum

Gold

Goose

Harp

Castle

Song

3 magic beans in the garden shop.

Small and round with a sprout
on the top

Along came with a penny
one day.

Bought a magic bean and took it away.

There once lived a lady with her son Jack and their cow. She said Jack, 'You must go and sell her'. Jack gave a man the cow in return for 5 magic beans. When he got home his mum was not pleased and threw the beans out of the window.

The next morning, outside his window was a beanstalk. Jack climbed the beanstalk and at the top was a castle. He knocked on the door and a giant woman answered. 'Thud! Thud! Thud! 'Argh!' said the woman 'It's my husband, hide in the cupboard so he doesn't eat you.'

The giant said 'Fee, fi, foe, fum! I smell the blood of an Englishman. Be he alive or be he dead. I'll grind his bones to make my bread!'

The giant began to count his gold but soon fell asleep. Jack snatched a bag of gold and climbed down the beanstalk.

The next day Jack climbed the beanstalk again. The giant women met him at the door. 'Thud! Thud! Thud!' 'Argh!' said the woman 'It's my husband, hide in the cupboard so he doesn't eat you.'

The giant said 'Fee, fi, foe, fum! I smell the blood of an Englishman. Be he alive or be he dead. I'll grind his bones to make my bread!'

The giant watched his goose lay a golden egg on the table and then he fell asleep.
Jack grabbed the goose and slid down the beanstalk.

The next morning Jack went back up the beanstalk and this time instead of hiding in the cupboard he hid in the washtub. Soon he heard, Thud! Thud! Thud!

The giant said 'Fee, fi, foe, fum! I smell the blood of an Englishman. Be he alive or be he dead. I'll grind his bones to make my bread!'

'You certainly do,' said his wife. 'That little thief probably sneaked in again, he always hides in the cupboard'. But Jack wasn't there. The giant got out his golden harp and roared, 'Play!' and the giant fell asleep. Jack grabbed the harp and ran.

The harp screamed 'Master! Master! And the giant woke up and ran after Jack.

Jack scrambled down the beanstalk yelling, 'Mum, get the axe!'

His mum and him chopped down the beanstalk. The giant and the beanstalk hit the ground together.

And that was the end of the giant.

